Comments: (If possible, please reference section and/or page number in document if applicable.)

It is safer, more secure and scientifically viable to store nuclear waste in dry cask storage on site than to transport it. After September 11th it is irresponsible to consider transporting this toxic waste through 41 states.

Neither rail nor truck has a good safety record and movement over decades will present attractive terrorist targets.

The nuclear lobby, nuclear producers and their institute should think about patriotism instead of greed.
